

COMMUNITY NEWS

Plans unveiled for Buffalo's new Riverline greenway project

BY SPECTRUM NEWS STAFF | CITY OF BUFFALO
PUBLISHED 1:11 PM ET APR. 29, 2021

BUFFALO, N.Y. — We now know what a propose nature trail and greenway in Buffalo will look like. Plans were unveiled Wednesday.

The Riverline will stretch one and a half miles. It will transform the former DL&W rail corridor along the Buffalo River.

There will be various paths for bikes and pedestrians with bridges and accessible entries with gateways to different communities in Buffalo.

Officials hope to restore the ecosystems of this area with different meadows, woodlands and wetlands and hope to create spaces for the community to come together.

in an urban community, by Governor Kathy Hochul said.

Additional public input is needed for these draft plans.

Feedback cards will be placed at select locations around the Old First Ward, Perry and Valley neighborhoods.

To see more on these plans, click here.

YOU MAY ALSO BE INTERESTED IN

1:29

THINGS TO DO

Maid of the Mist launches new season with electric, emission-free vessels

NIAGARA FALLS | 1 DAY AGO

0:39

COMMUNITY NEWS

Buffalo student artists creating mural for mental health awareness

COMMUNITY NEWS

City of Buffalo announces 2021 street paving schedule

CITY OF BUFFALO | 1 DAY AGO

2:12

ENTERTAINMENT

Western New York county fairs may happen this summer

WESTERN NEW YORK | 3 DAYS AGO

0:42

GOOD NEWS

BPD C District hosts drive thru food giveaway event

BUFFALO | 5 DAYS AGO

SPECTRUM NEWS

CONTACT

ABOUT

RSS

SITEMAP

FAQ

ADVERTISE WITH US

CAREERS

TERMS

Copyright Charter Communications